

In need of Prevent training tailored to the needs of your organisation?

The Education and Training Foundation (ETF) can support your organisation to implement the Prevent duty. In addition to our free online training modules and resources, ETF also provides in depth training on different aspects of the Prevent duty. ETF Prevent courses are on the Home Office approved list, so you can be confident that your organisation will be comprehensively equipped to demonstrate compliance with the Prevent duty.

Ofsted has raised concerns about the Prevent duty in some quarters of further education. A specific recommendation from the report is that providers should be better aware of the support The Education and Training Foundation (ETF) can offer.

The report said: ‘some providers viewed the duty as a list of conditions just to comply with and have adopted a ‘tick-box’ approach. This goes against the spirit of the government’s guidance, which seeks to promote meaningful ways to reduce the specific risks of radicalisation and extremism for learners and the local community.’

‘There was a tendency to be over-reliant on online training packages. These packages provided only a basic awareness and understanding of ‘Prevent’. Little thought was given to extra or bespoke training for staff.’

‘Providers now must work more quickly to ensure that learners are protected against the threats of radicalisation and extremism.’

*Ofsted Report: How well are further education and skills providers implementing the ‘Prevent’ duty?
– July 2016, No. 160041*

In-house Prevent duty training courses

Our Prevent courses are available for delivery in-house and they can be tailored to meet the needs of your organisation.

In-house training opportunities for your staff:

- training for support staff, practitioners, middle or senior managers or board members on Prevent duty in their organisation's context
- British values training – how to find opportunities to promote British values in your organisation in curriculum areas, pastoral functions and for support staff
- challenging extremism training – supporting providers in challenging extremism.

British values for curriculum leaders

A face to face one day workshop for curriculum leaders and staff, this workshop will cover:

- British Values and finding opportunities to exemplify and promote them in the curriculum
- critical thinking and the curriculum
- challenging extremism and hate speech.

Prevent duty workshop for safeguarding officers

A face-to-face two day workshop for safeguarding staff on the Prevent duty and integrating British values into the practice of the provider and the curriculum.

This workshop will address concerns that safeguarding staff have and support them to develop their practice to cover the Prevent duty.

BOOK IN-HOUSE TRAINING

To book your training email prevent@etfoundation.co.uk, quote 'early bird' in the subject to access our discount for bookings taken during September.*

*Terms and conditions apply.

BRITISH VALUES ONE DAY COURSE

Bronwen Ray
@bronwen_ray

Thought provoking practical training on Prevent & ways to address challenging situations today @E_T_Foundation highly recommended!

PREVENT SAFEGUARDING

"We've had great feedback about the course which has stimulated much discussion among colleagues." – Marina Gaze, YMCA training

"An extremely useful day that provided a clear and comprehensive overview of the Prevent Duty. It was really useful to see how others interpret and implement this in their institutions."
– Newcastle College

The
Education
& Training
Foundation